

TRAIN KILLS MAN IN TERMINAL YARD

Believed to Have Been C. Angelo, Italian Shoemaker, of 829 Fourth Street.

A man believed to be C. Angelo, an Italian shoemaker, at 829 Fourth street northwest, was struck and killed by a Baltimore and Ohio passenger train in the Terminal yards this morning.

The man was crossing the tracks just south of New York avenue and was struck by Train 55, which was backing into Union Station. The body was badly mangled. The train was moving slowly, and, according to witnesses, the man stepped on the track when it was less than ten feet away.

Coroner Nevitt has ordered an inquest at the morgue tomorrow morning.

Up to a late hour this afternoon no one has called at the morgue to positively identify the body. Angelo left his shop early this morning, and in the pocket of the clothes of the man killed by the train was a money order receipt for $100, made out in Angelo's name. The money had been sent to Italy.

The train which killed the man was in charge of Conductor Henry Constantine and Engineer William A. Conrad.

The Rev. Dr. Wallace Radcliffe, the Rev. Joseph T. Kelly and the Rev. T. E. Davis officiated. Twenty-one members of the church acted as honorary pallbearers. Burial was in Oak Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Bittinger was a graduate of the Princeton Theological Seminary and was ninety years old. He was ordained a minister in 1847. After serving short terms in churches through the Valley of Virginia, he came to the city in 1850 and in Baltimore, he labored for the Seventh Street Presbyterian Church here, which later became the Westminster Church Memorial.

Goodness! Catfish

Cooking Is Lost Art

Now comes one Max Pracht, a chef, prattling of the olden days, and the fact that catfish chowder seems a lost art, as if catfish were a lost art. Pracht is a chef well known to fish gourmets and gourmands, and he has a recipe for catfish chowder, which he says is the time come quickly, that the lost chord in the appetite be regained without delay.

Eight of Fourteen Held

In Scandal Kill Selves

BRELSAU, Sept. 22.—The police today reported the eighth suicide among the fourteen persons arrested in connection with a scandal of huge proportions, involving seventy-two school girls, army officers, bankers, several merchants, and professional men were among those held.

RUM CANE LATEST! IT'S POPULAR, TOO

Drinks Can Be Stored Therein for Sunday Use—It's the Jones-Works Stick.

The Sunday cane or the Jones-Works walking stick is the latest fashion for men. Nifty little fashion, too. It is gaining popularity because of the extreme drought of Washington on the Sabbath since the new excise law hit town.

Simple little fashion though it is, still it serves the purpose of being not only ornamental, but useful. Just to think—you can now stow away in a cane the makings of a fine little jag.

A New Yorker is introducing the Sunday cane fad here. His stampering grounds are twelve cafes here, and he has been doing a land office business.

The Jones-Works walking stick contains a long tube, in which liquor may be put for Sabbath use. Over the top of the tube rests a smaller tube. This is the tumbler. Livingston says that for a lady's drink, but the other sure does contain a man's size drink.

The Sunday cane isn't all, either, but in comparison with the others fads it is insignificant. One cane contains a cigar lighter; another contains a combination arrangement which can be converted into a cigar or cigarette holder or a pipe.

With the cigar lighter cane it is necessary only to remove the silver cap of the cane to get a light. The other three-in-one affair is quickly convertible into any one of its constituted parts.

Greek King Evens Up On Praise for Troops

PARIS, Sept. 22.—King Constantine of Greece, having pacified the Parisians by praising the effect on his troops of French military instructions even more warmly than he complimented the Germans, expected to return to Eastbourne, England, today, where he left Queen Sophia last week.

The King came to France unofficially without the Queen, in an attempt to get himself right with the French before his scheduled visit later this week. He was the guest of President Poincaré at luncheon yesterday, and on that occasion made a speech in which he expressed gratitude "for the precious support" of France.

THREE KILLED, 45 INJURED IN WRECK

Two Electric Trains Collide on Long Island—Steel Cars Save Many Lives.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—Crashing head-on while traveling at a rate of twenty miles an hour, two electric trains on the Long Island railroad were wrecked at College Point, Long Island, early today, resulting in the death of three trainmen and the injury of forty-five passengers. That the death list was not greater is due to the fact that the cars of both trains were of steel construction and withstood the shock.

One of the trains was bound for New York and the other for Whitestone. The New York train was loaded with commuters, and the first car was ripped open about halfway back. Even this car did not topple over, however.

Motormen Crushed to Death.

Fred Loeder and Charles Muerlein, motormen of the two trains, were crushed to death in their compartments at the front of their cars. George Borekell, a conductor on another train, who was on his way to work, also was killed. John Marx, a quartermaster on the liner Lauscha, living at Whitestone, was taken to the Flushing Hospital in a serious condition.

Among those injured on the New York train were many women, who were hurried to private homes or cared for at the hospitals. Ten policemen en route to New York for the Governor's funeral were painfully cut and bruised, but all took an active part in directing the work of rescue.

Misunderstanding of Orders.

The wrecked trains were No. 311, inbound to New York, and No. 308, eastbound from New York to Whitestone. The Whitestone train had just passed the station and, rounding a curve, the New York train could be seen rushing on, not more than a block away. There was no chance for either motorman to bring his train to a stop and they crashed together with a roar, piling the cars in a heap at the side of the track.

When ambulances reached the scene the injured had been dragged from the wreckage by other passengers and had been given the little attention that was possible.

A misunderstanding of orders is said to have been responsible for the wreck.

City News Notes

W. N. Woodbury, horse trainer, who has been sought by the Washington police for nearly a year, will be brought back to Washington this week to answer to charges of grand larceny. Woodbury surrendered at Eureka, Utah. It is alleged that he passed a number of worthless checks.

After a two weeks automobile tour through numerous Maryland and Virginia points, Col. and Mrs. George A. Armes have returned to Washington.

Cut flowers, potted plants, fruits and vegetables will be displayed at the fifth annual show of the Brookland Brotherhood September 30 and October 1 at Lord Memorial Hall, in the Brookland Baptist Church.

Arthur Deerin Call, executive director of the American Peace Society, will lecture on the theory and practice of elementary education before the Teachers' College of the George Washington University. Miss Marietta Stockard has been re-engaged to lecture on educational story telling and children's literature, and Dr. Willard S. Small will lecture on child study and school sanitation and administration.

The Poincaré bill dealing with the "army of the unemployed" has an enthusiastic advocate in Carl Browne, who spoke on the Capitol steps with Kearney in 1912, and who, in 1904, was arrested for making a second attempt. Browne is here seeking permission to speak on the bill, but he says he will not.

Seaman Falls Into Sea.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Sept. 22.—Fritz Lindler, aged thirty-one, a Swedish seaman on the Clyde line steamship Lenape, leaped or fell into the sea while the vessel was ten miles off Cape Hatteras.

Here's How Poor Navy Officers Will Have to Split Up 30-Cent Tips

The action of the Comptroller of the Treasury in ruling that 30 cents a day is sufficient to cover the necessary tips of admirals and future admirals has given rise to another obstacle for officers to surmount.

It is the order from the Treasury Department that internal revenue officers will have to pay their own laundry bills. Overlooking entirely the laundry end of his troubles, here's how a naval officer plans to divide his 30 cents a day tipping allowance:

Porter, on arriving at destination	$.02
Taxicab driver to hotel	.01
Bell hop, who shows you room at hotel	.02
Barber	.02
Ice water boy	.02
Waiter, per meal 3 cents	.15
Boy who takes care of your hat while you eat, three times daily	.02
Bootblack	.02
Total	$.30

not speak unless he can get permission, as "he is tired of jailing."

The Rev. S. N. Vail, of the Concord, has gone to Fort Wayne, Ind., to perform the marriage ceremony of two nieces, this week.

The police are searching today for a drunken colored man, the alleged assailant of fifteen-year-old Morgan Brooks, who was cut on the right temple, while in Stanton Park with two other boys Saturday night. Brooks and his companions tried to "kid" the colored man, the police say, and he became vengeful, cutting Brooks with a knife.

The monthly meeting of the United German Societies of the District of Columbia will be held at Bessler's Hall, 322 Pennsylvania avenue, tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

An automobile belonging to C. W. White, of 810 Fifth street northeast, was practically destroyed by fire caused by explosion of the gasoline tank.

Complaint was made to police of the Eighth precinct today by Charlie Lee that his laundry, 641 R street northwest, was entered during his absence yesterday, and $2 in cash and a gold stickpin stolen.

Nimrod F. Thompson, charged with breaking his parole and failing to pay his wife $25, as he promised, was sent to Occoquan for nine months by Chief Justice Claiborne, in the District Supreme Court. He was indicted last November, but placed on probation by Justice Gould on condition that he would support his wife.

Harry A. Orrison, a member of the fire department, was sued for maintenance by his wife, Anna A. Orrison, in the District Supreme Court today. The couple were married in Alexandria on November 11, 1909, and have two children.

William A. Hopkins sued Ruby V. Hopkins for an absolute divorce. The couple were married May 20, 1912.

Mrs. Mary G. Gray filed suit for a limited divorce against J. Newton Gray in the District Supreme Court today, setting forth drunkenness and desertion as the grounds for the divorce. The couple were married April 27, 1904, and have two children.

INDORSEMENT GIVEN THE RANDELL BILL

Mayors of 1,200 Cities on Record for Flood Protection Along Mississippi River.

The mayors of 1,200 cities have gone on record favoring the Randall-Humphreys bill, now before both houses of Congress, providing for Government aid in correcting the present perilous condition of the levees along the Mississippi river. The Mississippi River Levee Association believes that the control of the treacherous flood waters of the lower Mississippi is neither State nor sectional in the necessity for corrective action, and in its call for Congressional action of a favorable nature it has included letters from heads of city governments as far distant from the Mississippi river as Washington state.

The whole nation is comprehended in the benefits to be derived from safeguarding 100,000 square miles of territory now subject to damage by flood waters, and to bring every pressure to bear upon Congress to pass legislation looking to relief from the loss of life and property the levee association has become active.

The 1,000,000 people living in the area of the flood waters have already spent nearly $70,000,000 in building a levee to cope with the situation, and the expenditure of an additional $60,000,000 is expected to correct the present dangers. The Randall-Humphreys bill provides for the allotment of such an amount during the next five years.

Present Government Plan Liked by Citizens

Approval of the present form of city government and little, if any, discussion of the proposed change in the plan of administering the city's public affairs, as suggested in the proposed bill of Congressman Clyde H. Tavenner, will feature the bimonthly meeting of the North Capitol and Eckington Citizens' Association tonight. The meeting will be held in the North Capitol building at the corner of North Capitol street and Rhode Island avenue, and expressing satisfaction with the present form of city government, will be given as the first order of business. Following will come discussion as to the needs of the North Capitol and Eckington district.

"Our association," said Secretary A. Coulter Wells, "is composed of more than 100 live men of our section of the city, and all of us, I believe, can vote as one on the question of being content with the present form of city government, and all that's in it."

Increase in Army Aero Corps Sought

Declaring that the time is not far distant when, because of the growing importance of the aeroplane as an engine of war, the United States may have to establish its aerial corps as a big and separate division of its fighting forces, Brigadier General S. S. Scriven, chief signal officer, U. S. A., has appealed to Congress for means by which to develop and increase the present aerial outfit of the army.

"The situation is critical," he says in a statement prepared for Congress, "and the army must, for its own protection, train a sufficient number of its officers in the handling of its aeroplanes. The army must look to itself and to the men of the organized militia to supply a reasonable number of officers for military aviation in case of necessity. The necessity may arise at any moment."

"No doubt the development of the navigation of the air is something new under the sun, but it promises to assume enormous proportions. Few would doubt that we are on the verge of developing a great new science."

Learn of the Foundation---The Corsets

Go to Third Floor—Miss Irene Chadwick Will Advise You

The Palais Royal and its patrons can be congratulated in being favored with the services of this famous expert, for nine years with Wanamaker. Miss Chadwick will personally fit any visitor upon request.

Why the "Bon Ton?"

The fashion trend is to the natural figure—and the new Bon Ton, softly clinging, giving freedom, while in no way lessening the aid to nature, is the ideal of today. Low-busted, with long and close-fitting hips, without bones, they are the acme of grace and comfort. Prices gradually rise from $3.50 to $12.00.

Why "Royal Worcester?"

For housework, shopping, motoring, sporting, and for other than dress occasions, the Royal Worcester answers every purpose, while costing as little as $1.00 and no more than $3.00.

Corsets, 29c—Spots—Brassieres, 39c

Before going to the third floor, stop at the great first floor table near elevator—look for these corsets and brassieres. They'll prove the bargains of a day—probably less than a day. Can't you be a morning visitor?
